Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Saturday 19 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and scattered showers.

Today:
Rather cloudy for many. Most places starting off dry, but some patchy rain across the southwest. Scattered showers then breakout more widely across the west before spreading east from late morning. Some afternoon sunshine then developing in the west.

Tonight:
Any showers in the north gradually die out through the evening with some late sunshine then clear spells in the northwest. Elsewhere cloudy with a few scattered showers.

Sunday:
Most places cloudy with patchy rain, turning more persistent across the north and west later in the day. Largely dry in the south, some afternoon sunshine in the southeast.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Patchy rain dying out Monday, brightening up in the afternoon. Tuesday dry with light winds and bright or sunny spells. Turning cloudier with rain spreading east later Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.